ANOTHER OLD TIMER PASSES AWAY

The death of Mr. Abram M. Snyder took place on Tuesday at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. B. Rosenthaler, at the age of 72 years. Mr. Snyder became indisposed on Saturday last but it was not thought that he was seriously ill; however he became worse and died as stated on Tuesday of pneumonia and heart trouble.

Mr. Snyder came here 21 years ago, at the same time that many settlers from Waterloo County, Ontario, arrived here, and has lived in the district ever since. He was of a very quiet disposition and was well liked by all who knew him.

His wife predeceased him four years ago. Six children survive him: Edwin, of Camrose; William, Didsbury; Alvin, Edmonton; Ephraim, Bellngton Wash.; Mrs. Rosenthaler, Didsbury; Mrs. Geo. Sholine, Red Deer; two brothers and six sisters. The family will have the sincere sympathy of the whole district in their loss of a loving father.

The funeral will be conducted by W. S. Durrer on Friday. Services will be held at the home of Mr. B. Rosenthaler at 1 o'clock and at the M. B. C. church at 2 o'clock, Rev. W.

Lady Luck Stays With Sleigh Driver

We don't think Mr. P. H. McCann carries a rabbit's foot or has a lucky goat but surely some good influence was watching over him on Tuesday afternoon. He was driving home in a sleigh and had turned the corner near the electric light plant going east and looked back to see if some boys who were riding on behind had jumped off when the team bolted on to the track in front of the four o'clock passenger train. The engine caught the rear end of the sleigh and smashed it all to pieces. The wonder was that Mr. McCann escaped any injury and a little boy by the name of Booker, who had hung on escaped with only a few scratches. If the team had been a second or two slower there might have been a much more serious ending to report. Mr. McCann's friends will congratulate him on his very narrow escape.

Serious Fire at Olds, $100,000 Damage

OLDS, Alta., Feb. 22.—Damage estimated at more than $100,000 was caused by fire here Tuesday, and this morning the ruins of practically an entire business block on Railway avenue west are still smouldering. Eleven business firms were completely wiped out and while a number were amply protected with insurance the loss to many will be irreparable.

The fire, which was the most disastrous in the history of the town, started in the engine room of Publicover's barber shop shortly after 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, and within an hour the entire line of stores between the Victoria Hotel on the north and Paul's drug store and the Merchants Bank on the south had fallen before the flames so quickly did the fire spread.

Davey Bros, general,

Traub officialing. Interment will take place in the Didsbury cemetery.

By a peculiar coincidence, the block that was burned down was the only one that survived the disastrous fire which visited Olds in November, 1919 and which practically destroyed the entire business section of the town.

An investigation will be held by the town officials to try and determine the origin of the fire.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

Canadian Made

As a health builder, Royal Yeast is gaining in popularity every day. It is a food - not a medicine. It supplies vitamins and minerals, and no lack. Royal Yeast is highly beneficial in cases where the system seems "run down". Royal Yeast is the richest known source of vitamins, and when taken into the system acts as a catalyst. Royal Yeast Cakes are recommended for their purity and wholesomeness. It is the purest, the most convenient and economical yeast on the market.

To four Royal Yeast Cakes a day will work wonders. Half-day's supply can easily be prepared in one minute. Just break a yeast cake in warm water and teaspoon sugar to each yeast cake. Let stand over night in moderately warm room. In the morning stir well and pour off liquid. Place in refrigerator or other cool place and drink at intervals throughout the day.

Canada's Needs

No. 6—Scientific Research (Continued)

Admitting that Canada has been backward in the prosecution of scientific research, and granting that an effort should now be made to overtake the loss occasioned by past neglect, the question arises what is to be done now?

No Government should be expected to bear all the cost of discovering new scientific truths; that of course is paternalism. Most of the cost of this must be left to private enterprise, since it is by private enterprise that the new knowledge is obtained. Properties had not employees set to work, and production can do so.

But in every branch of Canadian enterprise there is bound to be tremendous waste. Many duplicate laboratories would be required. Much overlapping of effort would go on. In one laboratory what would be lost in proving or disproving what had already been learned in a laboratory somewhere else—and perfectly willing to share the knowledge.

A vast amount of energy and money would be wasted on ground work—instead of having the ground work done as far as possible in common and the money available for research concentrated on the really new effort. To discover a quite simple formula might cost so much for laboratory and men as to discourage the enterprise.

A lack of organization would be, therefore, a drag on the wheel.

It has been suggested in such circumstances that the universities should be mobilized. But this view has had to be abandoned, not merely because universities are scattered, but because university routine cannot meet the requirements of the kind of research the business world now needs with regard to the usefulness of the university to its students.

It has also been suggested that the scientific staff attached to certain Governmental departments could suffice. But the work which is to be done is so varied, and the Dominion Government is so large, that a massive investigation can be carried out on the best advantage under one or more of the Provincial Governments, or under Federal and Provincial authorities in cooperation. Moreover, it will often happen that the work cannot be completed as a practical and commercial success without calling on the financial and other help of the industries which are concerned. In all such cases the work lies outside the duties of any Government department and should be directed by a body with greater independence and freedom from administrative duties.

Thus in England, in the United States, in Germany, and in Japan, the need for some central bureau of research to synthesize the efforts of individuals has resulted in the establishment of State Institutions equipped and endowed by public funds, controlled by Parliament only in regard to the amount of funds made available for its yearly work.

It is proposed, therefore, that the Government of Canada should set aside $500,000 to erect and equip a building at Ottawa to be known as "The National Research Institute," and that it should make an annual grant for the carrying on of research in the public interest.

In addition to this kind of work special confidential studies of commercial problems would be carried on for persons or corporations to trade clubs willing to pay the cost of such studies.

The organization would provide a Bureau of Standards—that is, a Bureau for the marking of tests, measurements or analysis of standard articles of Canadian origin for work for which Canada has now to depend largely on imports of 2000 articles.

In other words, instead of having to rely on the scattered and unorganized efforts of amateur and half-splitter investigators instead of having their contributions send their names, as happened in at least one case to a foreign state institute to buy research, Canada would have her own central Bureau of Standards for Research.

Here laboratories and a library would be maintained for public use and a continuous study of Canadian materials would be carried on.

Here the results of ground work could be pooled and made available to anyone.

Here the engineer or chemist might find the last word in common knowledge of a subject and so have a much better taking of place for his own research.

Here would be men who might be employed at cost to make experiments for this concern or that, their findings in such cases becoming the property of the man or firm or group who paid the cost.

Here the finest instruments and apparatus would be available for those who desired to lend their expertise to explore some branch of knowledge.

Here, in other words, the State would provide at cost a common work place and a common repository of such new scientific knowledge as had been acquired at public expense. At the same time, scores discoveries made at the expense of private enterprise would remain the property of the discoverer, so long as they were not of benefit to the public at large benefit follows the application of such private knowledge.

This is what has been done in foreign countries. This is what the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research believes should be done in Canada. And after all, is this not one of Canada's needs which must be met if this Dominion is to take and hold its rightful place among the enterprising and progressive nations within the League of Nations?

Trials of Wireless Experts

Radio Operators Still Bothered By "Vagrant" Signals

Despite the most diligent research, experts are not yet able to ascertain the mysterious "vagrant" signals sent out every day, and particularly at night, are received on wireless aerials.

"From the earliest days of long distance wireless telegraphy, the difficulties in reception due to vagrant or natural electric waves and atmospheric electric discharges passing down the receiving aerial have been the bane of the wireless telegraphist," Professor John Ambrose Fleming, of London University, told the Royal Society of Arts. He said:

"Having regard to the fact that the positive atmospheric electric potential gradient of the earth increases at the rate of about 100 volts per meter of ascent, roughly speaking, it is not surprising that aerials several hundred feet high may be traversed by quite large currents due to this cause alone, which may entirely swamp the feeble signal currents."

Professor Fleming is the inventor of the thermionic valve receiver, which revolutionized wireless telegraphy and telephony.

BARELY LIVED THROUGH IT

A terrible experience had Edw. J. O'Connor, of South Ste. Marie. From his book he writes: "There has been a constant struggle from asthma and hay fever, and these attacks were often stopped up, and I had disagreeable droppings from my throat. When an attack of coughing came on, it seemed as if I was being buried alive. I used to gasp for breath. Coughing made me weak. It's such a grinding headache action was exactly suited to me, and I was unable to get out of bed. I had a severe attack of bronchial asthma. Throat irritation and bronchitis. Catarrhosis is highly recommended. Two months treatment, one dollar; smaller sizes, 25¢ and 50¢ at all dealers or The Catarrhosis Co., Montreal."

Blamed for Cattle Disease

Troubles Said to Have Originated Among Irish Cattle

The new outbreak of foot and mouth disease in England is said to have originated among Irish cattle, and have led to an embargo on English cattle by some Scottish countries. English papers are removing dense demands for the removal of the embargo against Canadian cattle. The Muirhead of Winnipeg, who is now in England to ascertain the methods adopted by the British to combat the disease, says: "My herd has been checked with steaming in over heated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds and pneumonia. My cattle have been dropped off after a few treatments with this painless remedy. Failure impossible. A suitable substitute for 'Patman's' 25¢ everywhere."

WEAK HEART NERVES BADLY SHATTERED

Most men and women who should be strong and healthy are not, and energy is bound by the shackles of ill health.

Some disease or constitutional disturbance has left its mark in the worn weak heart, shattered nerves, impoverished blood and an exhausted condition of the whole system.

In

they will find a remedy that will supply food for the exhausted nerves, one that will strengthen and regulate the weak heart and invigorate the whole system.

Mrs. W. W. Pearce, 11 Seaton St., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I was left with a weak heart and in poor health due to a number of diseases. I had to give up my business. My husband got me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after a few weeks I got relief, and after taking six boxes I have been well and not bothered since."

Price, 50¢ a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22

The situation existing in town financial matters is now reaching a climax and unless something can be done before another year comes round the town will find itself in serious difficulties. It is no use going into old history or bewailing the fact that such and such a thing should or should not have been done, as hindsight is always much easier to discuss than foresight. Sometimes our troubles are largely caused through our anxiety to reach our ideals at once without working up to them gradually, and this is what we are suffering from today.

Our ideal in regard to educational matters have lead us to ignore the cost to such an extent that the burden, for the small town especially, has become too heavy, consequently there must be some retrenchment. Unfortunately the government has its own troubles, and the situation in the south country is demanding all the financial relief that the government can give this year. No doubt some relief will be worked out under the suggestions made by Mr. Norman Clarke which has resulted in getting together a great many of the educational authorities of the province for the purpose of discussing the formation of High School Districts; the meeting will be held shortly in Didsbury. But that relief is somewhat in the future as it will take some time to get the government to pass the necessary legislation even if there is no opposition.

The question is can we carry on with all our school work until such relief is made workable.

The suggestion which was made at a recent meeting of the local Council and School Board that two grades, XI and XII, at the High School be cut out for a year or two thus saving a considerable amount in salaries, may seem reactionary but something drastic has to be done even if our ideals do suffer for the present. Of course this term will have to be completed, nothing else can be done, but the School Board could carry out this idea before the next term commences and while the saving may not be so very big this year it would relieve the situation somewhat. This seems to be the only way that any reduction in taxation as far as School matters are concerned can be carried out as the debenture indebtedness must be met, there is absolutely no way of relieving that burden

The Debate at Rugby

To the Editor of the Didsbury Pioneer.

Dear Sir:—

Apropos of the friendly debate of the U. G. G. and the Rugby farmers the other night the following thought may be interesting to both, viz.—That they need not unduly exercise their minds and lay awake at nights on account of the big interests in the East for they are raising the same article here for their own especial use. He is a strong sturdy lad flourishing like a green bay tree an will be a good stiff rod for their own backs if they do not start to discipline him soon.

Sledding Party Meets With Accident

Last Thursday night a large number of young people and adherents of the Presbyterian church made a sleighing trip to Carstairs. The weather was ideal and a good time enjoyed by all, although a rather serious accident occurred at the beginning of the trip which cooled the ardor of a good many. The first of the five sleighs, which had a grain tank on it, was carrying an extra large load and before they came to the railroad track the sleigh skidded on a grade, throwing the occupants all over to one side of the sleigh with the inevitable result that it turned turtle. Very luckily out of the entire load there was only one casualty. Mrs. A. Campbell, who was in the back of the sleigh, was thrown as it tipped and put her hand out to save herself from hitting her face, with the result that her wrist was broken. A doctor was immediately summoned and the wrist attended to.

When the party reached Carstairs and went around to the Presbyterian church where the Carstairs Y. P. A. gave them a hearty welcome. The evening was filled by a program contributed to by both congregations after which some of the fair sex of Carstairs served a very enjoyable lunch. The party then started homewards arriving in Didsbury at an early hour.

Tenderly he turned the body to more comfortable position, laying his cold coat beneath the head of the boy. He took off the coat, laid the moccasins over the boy's feet, and down the heavy chest saw the sudden red that marked his wound. Rain fell in scattered drops, and he heard another faint cry coming from little more than the silent shadow of his greater tragedy. He spread the blanket over the wounded boy, and sat down by his side, caressing the temples with his fingers, and wondering what to do next.

As he sat there helpless, the lightning grew closer, and the rain was far too heavy, to see the home of any settler. In daylight he could not doubt that he was back to heaven, for the night would be too late. He did not know whether Allan was dying on his hands at that moment. Certainly to attempt to move him would bring disaster in the extreme.

And as he sat he thought of the missing money, the truth of his life's labour snatched from him by the hand of fate. The boy had not hurt him as deeply as he might have thought; he was numbed by the greater blow that hung over him. It was the boy's fault. That boy had been his constant companion since boyhood. All his hopes, all his ambitions, all the years of toil and effort had been wrapped about Allan. He had no one else. His heart revolted at that thought. "You are a son, and destined to be a man, ready to share your life as soon as you are ready to share theirs." He forced his mind from that phase of his position, but he reverted to it again and again. He could not bear to memory up the path of his boy's life without meeting his boy's mother. And all the pain and unhappiness of

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.

This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition.

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:

"For years I was in a very nervous condition, was much depressed in spirits and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt so bad I could not get along. I consulted different doctors to no effect. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can only testify today to the great benefits received. There was a marked change before I used it, and the second box I had used I found my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to give the benefit of this wonderful medicine to friends, and I trust it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

the later years—how it cut like an evil bank of fire across the once bright course of their career! But he had suffered for their sakes, holding fast to his own course because he knew it to be best for them. "Pest?" And it had brought him to this? The question would not down. Rather than relax an iota from his own purpose, he had held them up to his family, told and cussed them until the core of his inflexible will, and now that same will had driven his son to destruction and himself to ruin.

Just as the first bars of grey in the eastern sky proclaimed approaching dawn, the sound of horses' hoofs came from the west. Harris rode into himself into a sitting posture and listened. Allan was still breathing, and apparently with less effort than when he had first come to him. The horse came nearer and nearer. At last it was in the road just below, and a moment later would have passed by had not Harris called out. His voice was strained, and he spoke in his own ears, and heard him an unknown effort.

Sergeant Grey abruptly swung his horse to the road and, dismounting, proceeded in the direction of the voice.

Harris told his story with such energy as he could. He and his son had come up into the hills to arrange for the purchase of a property which they had become interested in through the efforts of their old master.

He had been half-huddled with the horse and the boy Allan about whom he wrapped all the affection of his nature. He had crumpled up the money in his pocket and was about to take a break in his process of evolution when he had come upon the two lads who had grown up to the exclusion of all others. They were the sons of his old master and his old master had

AROUND THE TOWN

Miss Farrell, who has been visiting her sister Mrs. Dr. Clarke for some time past, returned to her home in Edmonton on Tuesday.

Reg. Simpson has now opened up a clothes cleaning and repairing establishment in the same building as the White restaurant. If you want your clothes renovated to look like new give him a call.

E. B. Shantz, of Carsstairs, has leased the corner store formerly occupied by the Union Bank and has equipped a well assort- ed and up-to-date harness store and repair shop in that location. The trade of the farmers of the Carsstairs district is solicited.

In a letter to the Editor, Mr. Frank Kiteley, who is staying at Bridgetown, Ont., states that they are having a fine winter there, no snow and roads like cement pavements. Autos are plentiful on the streets as in summertime.

Constable Jarman of the Provincial police, Olds, was in town on Monday and his visit proved rather expensive for two auto owners who did not have their 1922 auto licenses. One was fined $5.50 and the other $5.00.

We don't suppose anyone has missed them, but have you noticed those cute little decorations which have adorned several electric light poles on the corners? "Keep to the Right" have been taken down? Besides
